

EMORY Department of Gynecology
UNIVERSITY and Obstetrics
SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

Emory University School of Medicine, Department of Gynecology and Obstetrics, Jane Fonda Center invites applications for a Senior Level Faculty Position in Adolescent Sexual and Reproductive Health. This exciting position offers the opportunity for multidisciplinary research in adolescent sexual and reproductive health, family planning and related fields. The Jane Fonda Center is in the Department of Gynecology and Obstetrics at Emory University School of Medicine. The Center has a long history of conducting research to advance the knowledge about and enhance service delivery for adolescent sexual and reproductive health. We are looking for an energetic, innovative, committed and experienced faculty person to add to our team. The successful candidate will:

- Have a PhD and an established independent track record of extramural funding in adolescent sexual and reproductive health or related fields.
- Have a strong record of contributions in mentorship of trainees and junior faculty
- Show a background of scholarship, service on academic committees and professional organizations
- Demonstrate ethical conduct, professionalism, interpersonal skills, leadership, and management abilities to effectively direct and develop research consistent with the organization's pledge

Candidates from a wide range of disciplines (women's health, health disparities, health services, population health, epidemiology, behavioral health, behavioral economics and others) are encouraged to apply. Special consideration will be given to those with previous experience in adolescent reproductive health, women's health, or family planning.

Faculty appointment will be commensurate with experience. Qualified candidates will be considered for the Marion Howard Chair in Adolescent Sexual and Reproductive Health. Initial funding will be provided by the Jane Fonda Center, and candidates will be expected to secure extramural funding to support their research after the initial appointment. Partial salary support will also be provided by the Marion Howard Chair.

Atlanta is a vibrant and diverse city and headquarters for major research and public health entities including the American Cancer Society and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Emory University School of Medicine is a top research institution and is part of the Woodruff Health Sciences Center that includes an NCI designated Cancer Center-Winship Cancer Institute, Schools of Public Health and Nursing, the Yerkes National Primate Research Center, NCCR-funded Atlanta Clinical and Translational Science Institute, and Emory Healthcare, a leader in quality achievements among teaching hospitals in the U.S.

Interested candidates are encouraged to provide a letter of interest and current CV in confidence to Emory Career's website.

The Department of Gynecology and Obstetrics, together with Emory University School of Medicine, is fully committed to the shared values of diversity and inclusion in order to achieve and sustain excellence. We firmly believe that we best promote excellence by recruiting and retaining a diverse group of faculty and staff promoting a sense of inclusion and belonging for every member of our community. This climate for diversity, inclusion and excellence is critical to attaining the best scholarship, teaching, and research.

Emory University is an equal opportunity/equal access/affirmative action employer fully committed to achieving a diverse workforce and complies with all Federal and Georgia State laws, regulations, and executive orders regarding non-discrimination and affirmative action. Emory University does not discriminate on the basis of race, age, color, religion, national origin or ancestry, sex, gender, disability, veteran status, genetic information, sexual orientation, or gender identity or expression.

Interested candidates are encouraged to apply on the Emory Careers website at <https://faculty-emory.icims.com/jobs/48414/job>.